INTRODUCTION

The Police Telecommunication Organization came into existence in the year 1948 with 2nd world war leftover HF Sets. At that time, the manpower to make the system operational was merely 30 police personnel with main focus on anti-dacoit operations. With the increase in state police force and corresponding increase in the police communication network as well as other responsibilities, it has got increased to 1782 officers and men as now.

In the beginning, only a few districts and RAC check-posts were covered with HF communication, but with the induction of VHF communication in 1971, Police Telecommunication witnessed a spectacular expansion. As the communication network and technology enhanced so the need of additional manpower with higher qualification also increased. Gradually, modern equipments were procured on time to time and police personnel were trained to handle these equipments. A Research and Development wing was also established to study and develop advance means of speedy and efficient communication equipments and methods. To combat with modern technologies, Radio Trunking System has already been established and is functional in Jaipur and Jodhpur commissionarates. Digital communication is also being introduced in state.
